

Decorate Christmas Tree 1,300 Feet Under Ground

About ten years ago, in Ishpeming, Mich., timber haulers were on their way to a mine to put up some Christmas trees on the side of the road which had probably fallen from a truck.

One of the men picked up the tree and threw it on top of the timber. At the mine the tree was sent down 1,300 feet into the mine. One of the miners picked it up, put it on the side of the passageway. At lunch time some of the miners decorated the tree with bits of paper from their lunch kits.

"Let's do this every year," one of them suggested.

Since then a small Christmas tree is set up in that Michigan mine passageway. And not only the miners, but their guests, gather round the tree at 8 a. m., exchange gifts and indulge in small talk for about a half hour before starting their shift.

American Spirit Is Noted In Toys' Homemade Toys

With a typical American warm spirit, the people of the nation have started to manufacture many of their own Christmas toys.

For instance, in those shops where bits of wood are left from repair work, such lumber remnants can be used for the building of toys. Smoothly sawed off pieces make fine building blocks.

Spools and wooden cigar boxes come in for use as toys, too. The boxes can be made into trains, and spools can be used as wheels for them. Spools can even be strung together for beads, or lined up for imitation trains to be drawn along the floor by the baby.

They're Almost Human As Science Steps In

Even in the doll world, science has come through with its help. It has perfected an "almost human" doll whose heart beat can be distinguished by means of the doll's layette. So now little Janey, if she becomes worried about the condition of her "little baby,"

It doesn't take long to grow a suitable size Christmas tree from a seedling. That is one of the reasons why there isn't much possibility that the nation's supply of Christmas trees will reach a point of depletion.

Many farmers, having some acres of soil not suitable for regular farming turn the ground over to produce evergreens for Christmas use.

Many have taken up the establishment of Christmas tree plantations where harvesting is conducted on a sustained yield basis.

Most of the balsams, spruces, hemlocks, pines, cedars and firs used for this purpose are the product of northern swamp lands.

Origin of Yule Gifts
The giving of gifts to the poor at Christmas time originated with the belief that the Christ Child sometimes came to the door as a beggar.

These two youngsters, like thousands of others, are doing their part in helping the Red Cross be Santa both here and abroad.

Medieval Rulers Enjoyed
Huge Christmas Dinners
Calculation of the Christian era is usually credited to Dionysius Exiguus in the sixth century. However, he was somewhat in error, as it is believed Jesus was born before what was January 1, in A. D. 1.

The phrase Anno Domini (year of our Lord), of which A. D. is the abbreviation, was believed to have been first used in 1219.

School for Santa
Last year at Buffalo, N. Y., a night school to train recruits into a crop of finished Santa Clauses was opened.

When every jovial, red-garbed street corner bell-ringer's whiskers mark a Bachelor of Santa Claus Psychology.

Help a fighting man on his precious leave
Give your Holiday trip to a man in uniform! That doesn't mean buying him a ticket — it just means saving him a bus seat during the pre-Christmas rush when he wants to go home on leave. It's simple — just take your trip before the crowds are heaviest or wait until the New Year. You'll help, too, by traveling on mid-week days whenever possible — and traveling light!

Christmas Cards Are Personalized Through Pictures

Photographic Christmas greeting cards have been gaining in popularity during the past few years. The possibilities are widespread as far as the kind or type you would wish to send. There can be group pictures, individual pictures, humorous ones, big and small types.

Even the greeting itself can be included with the picture of the person or persons through the use of a large printed card. Humor is injected into the cards by having a Santa Claus drawn on a large background, with a hole left in the spot where the face should be. Any young member of the family need put his head in through the hole for the finished effect.

If you are not a good photographer, or have doubts as to whether you could take such a suitable picture, you should know at least three or four persons who are willing to take the picture for you.

Things to Conserve
Speaking of things we're short of, the Office of Agricultural Relations recently brought together in one list the main things that farmers should conserve. Here is the list:

Transportation, fuel oil and gasoline.

Rubber articles; Farm machinery; Barley; Nitrate fertilizers; Insecticides; Fencing materials; Lumber; Eggs; Cattle; Hogs.

Plenty of Trees
For a great number of people, a house not decorated with Christmas greens would be dull indeed. One expert has pointed out, though, that there need be no fear that there ever will be a shortage of the greens we are so accustomed to in collecting the greenery.

But as it is today, wanton destruction in the collection of the Yuletide decorations, so thoughtfully placed for our use by Mother Nature, has brought about a danger that we might not have some of the greens we are so accustomed to.

There is a danger that the American holly, in southern Atlantic coastal states, and the laurel plants of the mountainous country of the East, will both face extermination unless some organized method of harvesting is brought about.

Three other Christmas decorative plants that are rapidly disappearing because of new, and increased demand, are the winterberry, the ground pine, and the hollyhock.

To a large extent these plants can be saved if the nation turns to the use of evergreen boughs, such as cedar, pine, hemlock and spruce. For a touch of color, artificial red berries could well be used.

The story of our over-commercialization is always connected with the background of the disappearance of our native plant life without regard to future stock. Some form of protective law has to be put into effect to protect the quickly disappearing greenery. Restriction or prohibition in certain areas seems to be the coming necessity to save them.

Christmas Bells
I heard the bells on Christmas Day
Their old, familiar carols play,
And dimly revolved in my mind
The beliefs of my childhood.
